Rethinking 21st century skills: Zooming IN and Zooming OUT

Uwe Pohl, ELTE/Budapest

“The most ‘real’ world we live in is that of our fellow human beings. Without them we should experience a sense of enormous emptiness; we could hardly be human ourselves, for we are made or marred by our relations with other people.”

Schumacher, E.F. (1977) A Guide for the Perplexed. London. Abacus.

- Discussion Guidelines

Create a set of guidelines with students about what makes for good discussion.

- Talking Points

Engage students by having them respond to a provocative or controversial statement, instead of a yes/no question.

- Sentence Stems

Give students sentence starters to help them build richer vocabulary, speak in full sentences, and interact more with one another.

- Talk Tasks

Provide structures for exchanges between students to help them articulate and understand what they are learning.

- Groupings

Consider how to group students (in pairs, trios, traverses, etc.) to yield different types of conversation.

Our discussion guidelines

- * Always respect each other's ideas.
- * Invite someone to contribute by asking a question.
- * We give proof of listening.
- * We clarify, challenge, summarise and build on each other's ideas.
- * Be prepared to change your mind.
- * Come to a shared agreement.

“It started about 3 months ago and it hasn’t stopped yet. Although I’ve had fewer messages recently.

At first it was nasty messages on my phone but after a few days they began writing horrible things about me on FACEBOOK. I didn’t tell anyone because I thought it would stop but in the end I cracked.

And now I’m telling everyone. I’ve lost all my self-confidence and I’ve never felt so down. I just don’t know what to do.”
